The Prince's Restaurant and Café - at the Heart of Pontypridd's Community for 70 Years

William Gambarini with his father Joe outside the family business

When you enter the hugely popular Prince's Restaurant and Bakery, situated in the heart of the bustling South Wales market town of Pontypridd, it's like stepping back in time to a bygone era of style, symmetry and glamour, characterised by the Art Deco movement of the 1930s.

Three generations of the Gambarini family, who originate from Bardi, Italy, have worked at the Prince's since it was opened by Dominic Gambarini on 21 June 1948, and each has resisted the impulse to modernise, ensuring the survival of the original rich Art Décor interior for over 70 years.

Dominic's son, Joe Gambarini, who took over the running of the Prince's in 1972 when he was just 18 years old, explains, "I'm truly proud that we've managed to retain the key values instilled in the Prince's by my father all those years ago; our key focus is on quality and all our products are baked fresh daily in our downstairs bakery. We never use premixes, so all our ingredients are carefully weighed by hand and each product is made to a cherished family recipe. This, combined with our friendly, personal service, is what sets us apart from the many chain brands you see on the high street today. Some of our customers have been coming here each week for over 40 years!"

And, when you savour the Prince's famous Corned Beef Pie or sample one of their equally celebrated doorstep-thick Custard Slices you begin to truly appreciate the love, enthusiasm and passion that goes into the making and baking of each delicious hand-made or hand-finished steak and kidney pie, beef pasty, cream cake, bread roll or loaf of bread.

MONO's Chris Huish comments, "I've been working with Joe and his son, William, at the Prince's Restaurant and Bakery for decades and have supplied them with a range of bakery equipment over the years; the very first Bun Divider Moulder we sold them was back in the 1970s. Being an ex-baker myself, what I love about the Prince's is that they don't take any short cuts in their bread making; everything is made authentically from scratch on the premises using traditional artisanal methods, and in today's world of mass produced food, I genuinely believe you can taste the difference".

Joe responds, “Chris has helped us automate a number of our key processes by introducing a range bakery equipment which is perfect for our needs. This enables us to remain competitive whilst staying true to our core value of making everything from scratch”.

Today, the Prince’s employs 30 members of staff and continues to buck the trend of independent retailers disappearing from our high streets. Joe remarks, “We are indebted to the local community of Pontypridd and the surrounding Valleys who have taken us to their hearts. They remain loyal to us and it’s their patronage which enables us to continue. I can’t think of any other place I would rather have a restaurant”.

When leaving the Prince’s Restaurant and Bakery, a brief look over your shoulder captures a warm, friendly and relaxed environment where customers and staff chat and laugh together; a place where, for the duration of your visit, the woes of the outside world are momentarily forgotten.
